TRIAL OF OAKLAND MEN ON GRAFT CHARGES OPENS

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Reliable reports from Hollywood state that a man has been found working in a studio who is not a relative of anybody in the main office.

* * * *

Stranger things than this have happened—but we doubt it.

* * * *

We agree with Irvin S. Cobb. Something should be done about these play writers who have never seen the interior of a newspaper office and who write one of these "smashing" dramas of the fourth estate.

* * * *

According to all of the books the newspapermen are hard-boiled, sophisticated, cynical and what have you. In fact, the books say, they don't trust anybody.

* * * *

The books are all wrong. You'll find newspaper men just as big saps and "easy guys" as the majority of the public.

* * * *

* * * *

Day by day some of these pests come around, slap you on the back and say with a sickly grin, "Did you hear the latest Scotch story?"

* * * *

If we were candid and not hypocrites, we'd reply "No, and as far as we're concerned we don't want to hear ANY Scotch stories."

* * * *

But instead we grin and say "No What is it?"

* * * *

You've got to laugh—even if you've heard the story five times in the last half hour.

* * * *

* * * *

* * * *

And another pet peeve is the punster. A clever pun is good; a poor pun is murder. Once a punster gets started only murder will stop him.

* * * *

We're handing out credit to a certain judge in Richmond. Tuesday when business men were bemoaning the loss of their grandmothers, when officials found that they had to make a trip to Oakland and when office boys were kept home with toothaches, this judge posted a sign on his door, to-wit: "Gone to the baseball game. Will be out all afternoon."

* * * *

There, gentle readers—both of you—is honesty for you. The judge should receive a medal.

Antioch Drug Store Robbed

ANTIOCH, April 9.—Loot valued at more than $600 was obtained by thieves who broke into the the Milton Moyle drug store here last night. Of the loot, $300 was represented in cash, $300 in checks and a small quantity of narcotics.

That the culprits escaped via Pittsburg was indicated today when the narcotics were discovered near the highway, evidently discarded by the burglars.

Exchanges To Close On Good Friday

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—UP—The board of governors of the San Francisco Stock Exchange announced today that both the Stock and Curb exchanges will be closed on Good Friday, April 18 and on Saturday, April 19.

SMITH TELLS STORY ON STAND

OAKLAND, April 9.—UP—Testimony of Fred C. Smith, former San Leandro automobile dealer, opened the trial of five men, three of them formerly in the sheriff's office on charges of conspiracy to commit bribery here today.

Smith's testimony was similar to that he gave the grand jury several weeks ago which resulted in a accusation being returned against Sheriff Burton Becker. Becker pleaded guilty to one count and was automatically ousted from office.

The witness told of collecting money for protection of bootleggers.

RICHMOND PAIR AID HURT MAN

Found lying beside the highway north of the Carquinez bridge, late Tuesday by E. B. Lowery and Ed Ridley of Richmond, Clift Stone, 32, is in a hospital in Fairfield suffering from serious injuries.

Lowery and Ridley came upon Stone as he was lying beside the highway, suffering from severe gashes in his head and other injuries. Stone was unable to give a clear account of what had occurred, but authorities believe he had been struck by a hit-run driver.

The Richmond men took Stone to the Emergency Hospital in Vallejo, from which he was removed to the Fairfield hospital yesterday.

YESTERDAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE—

Norris resolution for investigation of primary and election campaigns was approved by elections committee.

PILE TESTS FINISHED AT FORD SITE

Immediate information relative to installation of storm sewers on Tenth street was requested by R. E. Brown, chief construction engineer of the Ford company yesterday in a wire to City Engineer E. A. Hoffman.

Hoffman stated yesterday that a reply will not be made to the wire until after tonight's special meeting of the city council.

Brown stated in his wire that "Our new plans are nearing completion and it is important that the sewers be installed in order that we may proceed with the work. Please advise how soon the sewer can be installed."

Driving of test piles on the Ford site on the inner harbor was completed by the Healy-Tibbitts company. Load tests lasting the rest of the week are being carried on. A report will then be made on the foundation for the plant by William Bremer, resident engineer.

Forty-five piles were sunk a little deeper than the borings had indicated, Bremer stated that this was not unexpected and that it presents no engineering difficulties.

The Ford engineers have received daily reports of the progress of the work and a final report is expected to be filed later.

Contractors probably will be given two or three weeks in which to present bids after completion of the plans and award of contracts is expected at an early date.

SON PAYS TO FREE DAD

MAZATLAN, Sinola, Mexico, April 9.—UP—Bearded and hungry J. E. Bristow was released today by Mexican bandits who had held him captive for nearly a month.

The Texas mining engineer was handed over to his son, Gordon Bristow, former football star, who was understood to have paid 3000 pesos (nearly $1500) ransom. The transfer took place near Ahuacatlan. Later Bristow went to Tepic with his rescuers. He is expected to arrive here Friday.

Word of his release was wired to U. S. Consul Edwin Schoenrich here by Vice-Counsul E. W. Eaton whose diplomacy, backed up by federal forces under General Pablo Rodriguez, was believed to have had much to do with the bandits' action in reducing the ransom from 10,000 pesos.

Bristow said he had been treated well, under the conditions.

Officials at Tepic will question the released man regarding reports that a former employe engineered his kidnaping.

Firemen Save Home From Flood

BERKELEY, April 9. —(UP) — Punishment just meant a new kind of a good time to little Nancy Swain, 2-year old daughter of Deputy Sheriff Frank G. Swain of this city.

When her mother made the child go into the bathroom with instructions to "stay there until you can be good," Nancy proceeded to lock the door from the inside and to turn on all the water taps in the tub and basin.

Firemen finally saved the house from complete flooding by raising a ladder to the bathroom window and turning off the water.

Director, Mate Separate 25 Times

LOS ANGELES, April 9.—UP—The married life of Al Santell, prominent screen director, and Ruth Santell was just one separation after another, it was testified today in the trial of their cross suits for divorce.

"They must have separated at least 25 times," the wife's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Lewis, said. "They broke up so often that I couldn't keep tab."

Mrs. Santell, who was on the stand when court adjourned for the day, cried every few minutes during her testimony. She said that she had suffered such mental cruelty that she lost 30 pounds.

SCHOOL EXPENDITURES FOR 1929 SHOW BIG INCREASE

School expenditures for the year 1929 in Contra Costa county show an increase of $2,647,542 over the figures for the year 1919, according to a statement issued yesterday by County Auditor A. Sullinger.

The expenses showed an expenditure increase of 187.4 percent over the figures for 1919 while attendance records show an increase of 59.6 percent.

The Contra Costa division of the California Taxpayers' association is much interested in this subject since expenditures for education formed 49.8 percent of the total county expenditures in 1928-29. In order to bring the outstanding points of the financial statement before those interested a summary of the more important figures was sent to school trustees throughout the county. The facts shown are of such widespread interest to all parents and taxpayers that they are reproduced below.

SEWER MASS MEETING SET FOR TONIGHT

The public has been invited to attend the special meeting of the Richmond city council tonight at 7:30 at the city hall chambers when plans for the installation of a complete new storm and sanitary sewer system in Richmond will be discussed.

Mayor A. L. Paulsen declared recently that he felt that the sewer project was urgent and that the council must reach a decision at once.

Plans for the system have been completed by City Engineer E. A. Hoffman who will present the complete data to the council.

It is believed that an open discussion of the problem will be held by the council.

BOY KILLED BY LOG TRAIN

ENREKA, April 9—(UP)—A five year old boy was instantly killed today when an automobile driven by the lad's grandfather crashed into a logging train at a blind grade crossing.

The dead boy is Eugene Turner, son of Mrs Rebecca Turner or Arcata.

The grandfather, Ira L. Kilgore, of McKinleyville, was only slightly bruised in the accident.

A high hedge paralleling the crossing is believed to have prevented Kilgore from seeing the approaching train. The boy's body was horribly mangled when the locomotive struck the light car, hurling it through the air for several yards. Kilgore owed his life to the fact that he was thrown clear of the wreckage at the moment of impact.

No date has been set for the inquest pending the return of Coroner Oscar Swanson from the State Coroner's convention at Del Monte.

Woman Kills Lover, Self

SALINAS, April 9.—UP—After shooting her asserted sweetheart, Felippe Nunez, 32, four times thru the heart when he visited her at her rooming house here today, Marie Hernandez, 30 Spanish beauty, turned the gun on herself and committed suicide. No motive for the shooting was known.

Mrs. Maitland Wins Divorce

LAS VAGAS, Nev., April 9.—UP—A divorce from Lieutenant Lester J. Maitland, noted Pacific ocean flier, was granted to Mrs. Ruth Thurston Maitland here today. Mrs. Maitland charged extreme cruelty. She was awarded custody of a five year old child. The Maitlands were married in Washington, D. C. in 1922.

100 HURT IN INDIA RIOTING

BOMBAY, India, April 9.—(UP) Serious riots, involving religion, caste and more than passive resistance occurred at the holy Hindu city of Nasik today while Mahatma Ghandi centered his attention elsewhere on the breaking of British salt laws.

More than 100 casualties were reported.

"Untouchables" — persons without caste, many of whom belong to the Ghandi passive resistance movement — went to the templed city of Nasik on a pilgrimage and demanded the right to share in worship and a religious procession.

Riots Start

Orthodox high caste Hindus refused to let them draw two chariots containing holy images, and the untouchables threatened to prostrate themselves in front of the vehicles blocking the way

When the Hindus took out the chariots drawn by thousands of devotees whose numbers were swelled by pilgrims atending a fair, vast crowds of untouchables rushed out to pull at the ropes The orthodox resisted and a free

3 CORNERED RACE SEEN IN STATE

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—(UP)—Mayor James Rolph Jr., of San Francisco today announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for the post of Governor of California, now occupied by C. C. Young.

Rolph, in the formal announcement of his decision to run for the governorship, stated that the three main points of his platform would be the formation of an equitable tax plan, determination of an humane solution for the crime problem, and provision for a program of conservation of the natural resources, especially that of water.

Political observers believe that Rolph's decision to announce his candidacy was influenced by the recent political dispute which arose between two other candidates—the incumbent and District Attorney Buron Fitts, of Los Angeles, as an outgrowth of the Julian Petroleum litigation.

Ran In 1918.

Rolph once before ran for the nomination for governor, against former Governor Stephens, but failed to secure the nomination. This was in the 1918 campaign.

Inhis statement of candidacy, Mayor Rolph said in part:

Fixing Of Oil Prices Denied

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—(UP)—The government today encountered another denial of guilt from a man accused of acting as a go-between in alleged price-fixing activities of the major oil industries.

F. R. Long made a complete denal of any knowledge of price fixing operations when he appeared in Federal court today.

The government has been conducting an inquiry into the alleged price manipulations of the oil companies for some months, and Long was named as a party to an asserted conspiracy in restraint of trade

Representatives of Shell, Union, Richfield and Standard Oil have all denied existence of such a conspiracy.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

But Where Do Women Go From Here?

TENTH birthday celebrations for the adoption of the Nineteenth, Votes-for-Women Amendment, are now in order all over the United States. Bright yellow Suffrage banners, hats, umbrellas are coming out of attics, and Suffrage campaigners in every State are planning parties for the exchange of fond recollections of the days when women fought for the franchise.

That beloved veteran leader, the silver-haired Carrie Chapman Catt, has just addressed her countrywomen, in a Nation-wide hook-up, on "The Hopes of the Founders." Miss Belle Sherwin, for six years President of the National League of Women Voters, into which the majority of the organized Woman Suffragists merged, has reported on "Discoveries in Ten Years of Suffrage."

No one should grudge, to these loyal soldiers of the Suffrage cause, their tenth reunion and celebration. Yet, even in the midst of it, the sane, middle-of-the-road feminist, who believes in women without believing them perfect, must hope that American women voters are not content to rest on their present achievement. Their slogan, it seems to us, should not be, "We have arrived," but "Where do we go from here?"

Women in the United States still have some way to go before, as one half of the Nation, they are pulling their full weight in giving the Nation good Government.

AS NELLIE TAYLOE ROSS, member of the Democratic National Committee and former Governor of Wyoming, said recently

"Exaltation of spirit must be tempered with humility. Some women are accepting their responsibilities, but there is a far larger number whose political consciousness is altogether unawakened. Enfranchised women in other countries are outstripping us in many directions—certainly in achieving the outstanding positions where they can mould political life and thought."

English women received the vote only a little while before American women—in fact, since thirty was originally the age of woman's enfranchisement over there, large numbers of English women voted for the first time only at the last election, when the age was finally put down to twenty-one. Yet, as Mrs. Ross pointed out, at that election sixty-eight women stood for the House of Commons—one of them only twenty-four years old—and thirteen were elected. A woman, Margaret Bondfield, sits in the Labor Cabinet.

One explanation of the contrast between the political consciousness of women in the two countries is that many English women, long before they voted, were keen and efficient political workers. But it is high time that, in this respect, American women caught up to them.

MORE, many more American women should use the ballot for which Suffrage pioneers fought. Voting is the least common denominator of patriotic duty for all of us voting from mental conviction, not from mean social or religious prejudices.

Belonging to a political club or association, with the consequent canvassing and other dull but essential duties of campaigning, is another way in which more women should function politically. Nobody expects this sort of work from the housewife who is a mother of young children, but why should it not be done by older women, with a certain amount of leisure?

We know one such woman, smiling, blue-eyed, gracious, who has a little apartment, no children and a husband in politics. We doubt if anything helps him more than his charming wife's well-deserved success as a political worker. Any woman with time to belong to a bridge club has time to belong to a political club—and is there any doubt as to which is more important?

Finally, it seems to us that more American women of conscience and intelligence should run for office. Heaven knows, the male office-holder with both qualifications is not too common! There is plenty of room, plenty of opportunity of accomplishment, for more women of the calibre of the three Ruths now in Congress—New York's own Ruth Pratt, Ruth Hanna McCormick of Illinois, Ruth Bryan Owen of Florida.

Getting the vote was the first job for the would-be good feminine citizen. But the vote was a means, not an end. Even during the current celebration of past achievement by the League of Women Voters, we hope they are not forgetting to be still more interested in their future!

WHO ARE FOR PEACE

THE WOMAN OF IT: It has often occurred to me that, of all others, the unmarried woman, between thirty-five and forty-five today—should certainly work for everlasting world peace. Why?

Well—these women (and there are thousands upon thousands of them) are suffering more, as a result of the war, than the rest of the world. These women were mature and ready for love and marriage thirteen years ago—and then came the war! All the young men they knew—their sweethearts, their brothers, their friends—were used for gun fodder. Some of the men never came back, and of those that did come, many—oh, so many—were crippled, blind, mad! Others were either physically ill or spiritually ill (the worst sort of illness). Most of them had a grudge against society in general.

Consider, for a moment, the number of men who went to war—and then consider the number of men who came back mentally, physically and spiritually sound! Pitifully few came back ready for love and marriage—and who can blame them? And so—Miss Thirty-five-to-forty-five is husbandless and usually unhappy. She is the real victim of silly, useless, unnecessary war.

LEE H. SELCOE.

Down in Willacoochee, Ga., the City Council has decreed that, while the town's young people may return home after midnight, all grown men must be home before then or explain why. The City Council has decreed—or the WIVES of the City Council?

Forcing Timid Children

"ISN'T it ridiculous," said Mrs. Thompson to her husband. "Bert won't go in above his knees."

"We'll soon fix that," answered Mr. Thompson, resolutely. And, grabbing his little one, he walked out into the ocean as far as he could go. The child screamed with terror! After that Bert went into paroxysms of fright every time his mother attempted to put his bathing suit on. The following winter the boy started to stutter. The doctors attributed this to the shock and fright he had undergone the previous summer!

Some adults will tell you that they learned to swim by being thrown into the water and that this drastic treatment didn't harm them a bit. There is no doubt that some systems are hardier than others and can withstand fright or shock much more readily. However, not knowing what the outcome will be, can we afford to take chances with our children?

A situation similar to the above was handled quite differently by a wiser parent. Bertha had learned to swim at a very early age, and dearly loved the water, but she had never had a chance to dive. When she was nine such an opportunity presented itself. She approached the diving board very confidently but when she tried to throw her body into the water something seemed to hold her back. She was afraid!

"All right," said her father. "Wait until you feel like it." For several days Bertha attempted to dive, but just couldn't. Many times when she had taken the diving position her father could easily have pushed her in, but he refrained, knowing that a shock might make her dislike the water. Of course he showed her the unreasonableness of her fear and encouraged her to overcome it, but he left its final conquest entirely in her own hands. At last one day off the board she dove, and that problem was solved for all time.

Let us help our youngsters to overcome their fears. Let us encourage them in every way. But let us not force them, allowing them to face and conquer these dragons themselves!

"DAD, what did the sexton tell the bell?"

"Tell the bell? He didn't tell it anything."

"Yes he did, Dad. Ma was reading a poem in a book, and it said:

'The people told the sexton
And the sexton tolled the bell.'

What did he tell the bell, Dad?"

"He didn't tell it, he tolled it."

"What did he tell it?"

"I tell you, Son, he didn't tell it anything. He T-O-L-L-E-D it."

"What did he toll it?"

"He rang it slow with a considerable interval between each ring.'

"Why did he toll the bell?"

"Oh, go to bed."

Color in Jewelry

THE latest novelties in jewelry certainly go to prove the theory that this is an era of color. Nearly all the attractive pieces, even the pearls, are colored. Pastel tones are of prime importance for afternoon and evening wear as well as for sports. In the latter instance the brighter or tropical shades are favored. Multi-colored, multi-stranded jewelry is very chic. Such strange materials as rubber fashion odd necklaces. A clever one is made of innumerable fine strands of rubber in three harmonizing pastel tones. And the clustered tear drop or grape motif is one of the outstanding fashions of the season.

FOLLIES OF FASHION

Short Sleeve May Mar Effect of Slim Waist

By Marguerite Barnes

THE figure at the right shows one of the new blouses with the fashionable short sleeve, and illustrates several of the pitfalls which a smartly dressed woman will carefully avoid. In this instance, the sleeves are just long enough to carry the horizontal belt line over to the arms, making the figure seem large at the waist. This plus the fact that the blouse is much lighter than the skirt, seems to cut the figure in half. For a woman who is short and fat or broad at the hips this effect would be even worse. The drawing at left shows a waist and skirt of one value, with the sleeves higher than the belt, thus breaking the lines and makes the figure seem taller and slimmer.

The Lunch Box

"AND here is the Lunch Box now — Whoopee!" said a group of bathers on Turtle Lake Beach as they made a mad dash for the big sedan that came lumbering down the dirt road leading to a level spot opposite the float. "It should be named the Life Saver instead of the Lunch Box," said another. "Here's my money—first come, first fed," they said, piling around and on the running board of the car as Louise and Larry Lansing stopped the engine. Other bathers and occupants of the cars came running when they heard the enthusiasts tooting the horn—"The Horn of Plenty," said one of them, with a lunch box securely clasped in his hand.

Every pleasant day at 12 o'clock the Lunch Box honked its merry way from Route No. 11 down to Turtle Lake Beach, filled with boxes of lunch.

The thirty-five mile drive from the city over an excellent motor road, or a short ride on a branch railroad made this level sandy beach, with its grove of maple trees, just far enough back to afford pleasant shade, a mecca for bathers and day tourists. Admission to the beach was available only by card, issued by the land company owners.

There was no refreshment or beverage stand near and the bathers and motorists either had to bring their own lunches or drive to the nearest town some four miles away.

So Louise and Larry Lansing, who lived close by on a farm and had bathers' cards, just as a "try-out" on Memorial Day had made up four dozen sandwiches, two dozen deviled eggs, persuaded their mother to make some individual pies in muffin tins and, adding several bottles of soft drinks from the town, drove down to the beach. As soon as they explained what they had in the big basket in the rear of their car they were surrounded and everything sold out immediately. Other bathers and luncheless picknickers came rushing up bewailing their fate, so back home they went for more sandwiches, eggs and commandeered the cookies and the cake that was to be part of their own supper, and with some pickles and fruit returned to the hungry ones and ended the day with a nice little profit.

Enthused with their success they repeated the performance the next week-end. "Now," said practical Louise, "if we are going to continue to do this we should have an understanding with the land company. They are urging people to come out here to look and to buy, and they probably would be glad to have some way of having them fed."

After explanations, and sampling of food, and having the manner in which the matter was to be handled clearly outlined, they were given an option on the exclusive right to sell food for a month, in order to satisfy the company of the practical side of the venture. They made it clear to Louise and Larry that no cooking was to be done on the beach, and they further insisted that the beach itself must be cleaned up and all debris carted away daily so as not to detract from the beauty or salability of the property.

The next step was to purchase boxes, in 1,000 lots that would hold two sandwiches, two deviled eggs, an individual cake or pie, some fruit and pickles. The bottled soft drinks were ordered in quantity and delivered at their own home. Their next step was straws by the 1,000 for the beverages, and paper napkins in 1,000 lots. They bought their sandwich bread cut, their meats sliced, except the meat loaf, which was made at home, and their cheese in bricks just the size of their bread, so that slicing was easy and accurate. The beverages were carried to the beach in barrels filled with chopped ice. Their fruits and berries were obtained through a large fruit dealer in the neighborhood. By careful figuring they could make a profit of 18 cents on each lunch box which sold for 50 cents. Of course, there was an extra profit on their beverages.

Soon they became known for the excellence of their lunches, and their business tripled. On weekends and holidays they hired extra cars and a farm truck from one of the neighbors and filled these, returning several times during the course of the day for replenishing.

It meant good hard work for Louise and Larry, and the family, even with extra help each weekend. During the season which lasted well through September, they continued to have a splendid business. As an additional source of revenue, and to meet a real demand, they drove a truck filled with lunch boxes, and the barrels filled with ice in which they kept their soft drinks cool, to a space rented from a farmer at the intersection of two of the busiest roads. The truck was placed sufficiently far back to afford parking space for several cars directly in front, and small boys gave excellent delivery to the cars from the truck.

On busy holidays or weekends they sold between 500 and 600 boxes—once totaling 720—their biggest day—and soft drinks in proportion. Here was a little venture with practically no operating expenses, but with excellent results.

Such a business can be developed on practically any busy motor road, near an amusement park or beach, or lunchboxes can be sold from a roadside stand, from a farm house close by the roadside, or even from an automobile or truck strategically placed. To build a worth-while business that will grow, those handling it must maintain the same high standard for their products and service that gave Louise and Larry their enviable reputation.

Patterned Crepes

THERE is a new trend in printed crepes for day dresses. Alluring all-over effects are printed in one color on light colored grounds as small white single floral motifs on color such as rose opaline, turquoise blue, linen blue, currant or yellow. This printed idea gives a feathery effect in one color that is the smartest idea evolved in new prints.

When the homemaker holidays by luncheoning downtown and attending the matinee, she marvels at the dressy dishes upon the menu card. Chicken or lobster a la Newburg, shrimp, crab and scallop Creole, fish timbales and Hollandaise sauce, fig souffle, chocolate torte and angel food a la mode are but a few of the names that catch her eye.

Analysis shows few of these dressy dishes difficult to make or particularly time-consuming in their preparation. As far as that is concerned they are a snare and a delusion.

NANCY DORRIS

Timbales, for instance, sound like a lot of work yet they are really as simple and quickly made as any main dish. In fact, they offer an attractive way to utilize any left-over fish, chicken, meat or vegetable and may be prepared in advance, stored during the day in the refrigerator and steamed or baked just before dinner time.

Dressy in appearance and very delicious are these

LENTEN TIMBALES

One cup cooked or canned fish
One-fourth cup fine breadcrumbs
Two eggs, well beaten
One and one-half cups milk
One-fourth teaspoon paprika
Baking time: 20 to 25 minutes
Oven temperature: 325 degrees F.

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

Four tablespoons butter
Two egg yolks
Four tablespoons cream
Juice of one-half lemon
Salt, paprika
Cooking time: 8 to 10 minutes over hot water
Servings: four or five

Evaporated milk is used with good effect in the timbales and sauce.

Any white-meated fish—halibut, cod, flounder, haddock, whitefish, to mention a few—or a favorite canned fish—cod, tuna, haddock or flaked fish—may be the chief ingredient in the fish timbales.

To cook the raw fresh fish place in a saucepan, cover with hot water; bring to a boil and then simmer five minutes. Drain (the liquor adds to fish chowder or gumbo), cool and flake the fish with a fork. Some cooks run the fish through a sieve while others prefer flakes of the dainty fish through the timbales.

Mix the fish flakes, fresh-cooked, leftover or from the can, with breadcrumbs and paprika. Stir in the beaten eggs and blend gradually with the milk. Grease four timbale forms or muffin tins and fill three-fourths full with the fish mixture. Stand the timbales in a pan containing hot water and bake in a slow oven until the centres are set, or about twenty minutes. Or they may be steamed until firm.

While the timbales are baking or steaming, the Hollandaise sauce may be making. Put the butter, egg yolks, cream, lemon juice, salt and paprika in the top of the double boiler (the water in the lower part should be boiling gently). Stir the mixture constantly until it thickens or coats a metal spoon—about eight to ten minutes. Remove from the heat immediately, lest the sauce curdle. Serve at once. Or cool and reheat slowly over hot water.

Remove the baked or steamed timbales from the molds by loosening with a knife, and arrange upon a heated serving platter. Pour the Hollandaise around them and garnish with lemon wedges sprinkled with paprika. Green peas, new potatoes in butter, orange and chicory salad and rice supreme and coffee complete a dressy and easy-to-get dinner.

Helping the School Child

By Emilie Hoffman

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

THE posture of the school child is of such importance that the desks and chairs in the school room are of varying heights to accommodate the different sized pupils.

The observant teacher will insist upon correct posture in her pupils. So will the mother who knows that round shoulders, crooked backs, fallen arches and other defects are the result of faulty posture, but the co-operation between home and school might be materially improved when it comes to posture.

Some postural defects are caused by defective diet and this must be corrected in the home. But such deformities as round shoulders, flat chest and curvature of the spine are the result of bad postural habits and it requires home training to overcome these.

The child may look very comfy huddled up in the easy chair while reading, but that slump of the shoulders may mean round shoulders. The flattened chest checks the functioning of the lungs and may encourage tuberculosis if this posture becomes a habit. The deformities resulting from lateral curvatures are well known, and yet many mothers do not realize how far-reaching the effect of faulty posture may prove to be.

The mother may notice that her boy does not walk erect, or that he droops his shoulders, and she may admonish him to straighten up, but she should explain to him the dangers of this practice and if necessary, she must take drastic measures to overcome bad posture habits, because most of the ailments that result largely from faulty posture, could be prevented if detected early and rightly treated. Even hip disease and hunchback can be checked in the earliest stages. So insist upon correct posture whether your child walks, stands or sits.

Correct posture in standing means that the head, body and legs should be held one above the other, so a line dropped from the front of the ear falls within the forward half of the foot. The shoulderblades should not protrude, but should be flat across the back, and the feet should not go off at angles, but should point directly forward. In sitting the body should be bent only at the hips and knees, while the head, neck and trunk should be held in a straight line.

Examine your child when he retires at night, and if while standing he tilts forward or backward or to either side, or if one shoulder or one hip is higher than the other, lose no time in placing him under corrective treatment.

When deformities and growth disorders develop, they prove a great handicap to the school child, especially in his social relations, which is quite liable to react as a feeling of inferiority, and this works out to the child's disadvantage and frequently is the explanation for school failures.

Have You Ever Thought—

It is economy to follow a regular schedule in the care of a floor? To clean, polish or refinish a floor only when necessary is injurious to the floor; it is harder work for you and it means an expense to restore the floor, which would have been avoided by regular care.

TELLING THE WORLD

By Neal O'Hara

AS SIMPLE AS A, B, C

TO all holders of Fox Film Company and Fox Theatres, Class A, stock: Let us explain to you the difference between the Bancamerica-Blair and Halsey Stuart refinancing plans. They're easy to understand, after you get to know them.

Under the Bancamerica-Blair plan a series of $17,000,000 gold debentures will be raised to equip Fox theatre ushers with more gold braid. This will stabilize the company until another Western picture is released.

Lon Chaney will be moved from dressing room B to dressing room K, disguised as a parlor stove, decreasing the overhead 29 per cent. The trustees will then retire $40,000,000 of preferred stock in the gold four-poster bed that was left over from "The Scarlet Lady" film.

The head doorman of the Roxy Theatre is to be given to Blair & Company as security for a short term note and his coat and epaulets placed in their safety vaults. These short term funds will be devoted to further expansion, permitting larger perforation in Fox films.

With $17,000,000 in debentures and $29,000,000 in short term notes, together with eleven tenor solos by John McCormack, the company will be in the strongest position in years. This is where Samuel Untermyer will object, but the trustees will release Rin-Tin-Tin at this juncture, straightening everything out.

William Fox, who up to this time will have taken no part in the conversation, will put his eyeballs in escrow as an evidence of good faith. The United States Marines will then arrive on the scene with back dividends and a pardon for Greta Garbo and everything comes out all right as Bancamerica and Electrical Research Products, Inc., kiss.

All stockholders in favor of this arrangement should vote for modification on the Literary Digest ballot and send their votes to the Proxy Theatre.

On the other hand, the Halsey Stuart plan of refinancing consists of raising $60,000,000 to buy a 51 per cent. interest in the West Point Military Academy and graduate the present crop of short term cadets as head ushers for Fox Theatres A.

With West Point in control of all aisles, boxes and loges, Fox theatres will be in a strong position. Halsey Stuart will then dump $6,000,000 into throat lozenges to give the talkies a more melodious tone. Then, at a signal from Mr. Halsey, concurred in by three Federal Judges, with Mr. Untermyer dissenting, the West Point cadets will answer the call to the Technicolors as Lawrence Tibbets sings "The Star Spangled Banner."

By taking $7,500,000 from the funded debt and applying it to silk hats, spats and malacca walking sticks, Grover Whalen can be signed up to take the place of Adolphe Menjou, William Powell and the Florodora Sextet at a saving of $20,000,000 a year. This would mean undivided profits of $29.40 a share, less depreciation and spare tire.

Twenty million dollars in bonds outstanding would then be retired at 9 P. M., daylight saving time, representing a saving to stockholders of $35,000,000 or $49,000,000 or both. With finances thus reorganized, Halsey Stuart will lend six diving suits to the sinking fund and all the troubles of Fox Films will be settled, with 100 per cent. sound.

All those in favor of this plan will signify by saying "aye" on their proxies, using one side of the paper only.

REDUCING SANE WAY

By DR. G. A. ESTERBERG

In last week's article in the Health Column we found that reducing diet does not, of itself, insure the much-desired slimness of form. We found that certain glands in the body have a deciding vote in the matter of dictating how much avoirdupois we accumulate and where it shall be distributed. We learned that diseases affecting these glands produce their dys-function and that normal function with more desirable distribution of body fat is, in these cases, dependent upon the correction of the disease affecting these glands (the cause) resulting in overweight (the effect.)

These glands, called the glands of internal secretion, make it possible for the old adage, "Like attracts like" to operate in the human body. Upon their activity depends the ability of the body to incorporate into itself certain elements that give to it its outstanding characteristics, thereby determining the "type" of the individual.

Glands Important

For instance, if the parathyroid glands are very active the body will attract unto itself large amounts of calcium and the individual will be recognized as a "Calcium type." These small glands are situated near the thyroid, are four in number each being no larger than a grain of wheat, but they are vitally important in the matter of calcium metabolism of the body.

If the thyroid gland is sluggish and underactive, among other effects it produces, the body less readily assimilates sulphur. "Sulphur types" have active thyroids.

Wise reducing programs, particularaly in relation to diet, always work in harmony with the type of the individual. No one expects to transform a terrier into a greyhound no matter how many varieties of dog biscuits are served. The terrier just is not built that way. His glands of internal secretion chisled a different kind of dog. If his master is half as wise as the dog he makes no attempt to make that terrier anything but a healthy dog—true to his terrer type. Likewise, human beings must remain dietetically true to their type if they wish to avoid physical disaster.

Variation Desirable

On first thought this may seem a bit disconcerting. It may seem more comforting and less troublesome to think of Mary and Jane, John and James all responding alike to some magic dietetic formula. On second thought, what a blessing that they are so different and that no misguided zeal, dietic or otherwise, makes it possible to run a chance of producing a race without the charm of variations. Truly, "it takes all kinds of people to make a world," and old Mother Nature seems to be fairly dependable in the matter of continuing to produce "all kinds."

If we happen to be a particular type the sensible ideal to strive to attain is to be as fine a specimen of that type as possible. It is true of those who indiscriminately fast and diet as it is of the glutton—"They dig their graves with their teeth."

Each week there will appear in this column a vital health and beauty message. Some physical limitations that contraindicate strenuous reducing will be discussed at a later date.

Next week we will consider some physical types and temperments giving suggestions about foods best adapted to the health and beanut needs of each type.

MRS. McCORMICK FACES PRIMARY ELECTION PROBE

WASHINGTON, April 9.—(UP)—A severe hazing, all in a spirit of fun, was in process of preparation for senatorial nominee Ruth Hanna McCormick, along with the congratulations and well hidden masculine envy that will greet her return tomorrow.

The senate elections committe approved the Norris resolution for investigation of primary and election campaigns, and will report it to the senate for passage.

Prohibition meantime arose as a Prohibition meantime arose as a difficult and possibly decisive issue n her campagn for election in

These developments come as her friends and enemies joined in paying tribute to her for fighting and winning one of the most energetic campaigns in years on the eve of her return from Chicago, to take up her double role—continuing her duties as one of the eight "gentlewomen of the house" and planning her election campaign.

In addition, she probably will face the primary investigation at the beginning, as Illinos held the frst primaary of the year, and reputedly one of the most expensive campaigns.

MRS. McCORMICK ON WAY EAST

CHICAGO. April 9. — (UP) — America's first feminine senatorial nominee, Ruth Hanna McCormick, entrained late today for Washington, so happy that her teeth sparkled in a continuous series of wide smiles. She went to the capitol to wind up her duties as congresswoman-at-large before entering seriously the struggle to carry the republican party's flag to victory in the senatorial election this fall.

When she boarded a Pennsylvania railroad train she left behind her perhaps the most chaotic mass of political wreckage ever to be strewn over a soverign state.

Senator Charles S. Deneen, a strong republican figure for 38 years, governor of Illinois for two terms and state republican leader, suffered the worst blow from her slender, but capable hands. Almost complete returns from the state's 7117 precincts in yesterdays primary election indicated she had defeated him by nearly 200,000 votes.

Big Bill Supports

The waning political star of William Hale Thompson, front page mayor of Chicago, on the other hand, was given a new lease of life by Mrs. McCormick's victory Thompson and his machine supported her throughout the campaign. The reward for victory for practically every Thompson nominee for local office.

Then there was the matter of the world court, also profundly affected by the deluge of votes in favor of the tall, slim daughter of Mark Hanna. Mrs. McCormick is violently opposed to the United States joining the world tribunal Senator Deneen is in favor of it. His defeat thus gave President Hoover something to ponder over before making his recommendation to congress concerning the court.

Finally, and perhaps most important of all, was the controversial prohibition question which Mrs. McCormick's victory brought forcefully in the open n Illinois almost for the first time since the Eighteent hamendment was passed.

Mrs. McCormick, known personally as a dry, did not mention liquor in her campaign. By winning, she now runs against J. Hamilton Lewis, democratic senatorrial nominee, who is the wettest wet outside of James A. Reed in the whole middle west.

Races for seats in the lower house also brought out some intriguing situations. Most interesting was that of Frank L. Smith, twice refused a seat in the senate because of alleged excessive campaign expendtiures, who received one of the republican nominations for congressman-at-large. Edward R. Denison, dry republican congressman, who once was forced to explain to the nation how a trunkful of liquor happened to be delivered to his office was renominated. M. A. Micaelson, anothed dry congressman who was cleared of charges that he imported a supply of liquor from Cuba, did not fare so well. His nomination remained in doubt, with James E. Morland still in the race against him as the last ballots were counted.

'NOT SO DUMB' COMES HERE TOMORROW

Marion Davies in "Not So Dumb," an all talking adaptation of the successful stage play, "Duley," which ran a full season on Broadway, is the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production scheduled to open tomorrow at the Fox California here.

The picture concerns the beautiful Duley (Miss Davies) who, in an effort to assist her fiancee, Gordon (Elliot Nugent) to complete the merger of his failing jewelry firm with that of the important C. Roger Forbes company, invites the entire Forbes family to a week-end party. Other guests at this party include Duley's brother, Bill (Raymond Hackett) a scenario writer, Leach (Franklin Pangborn) and a Mr. Van Dyck (Donald Odgen Stewart) haile das a multimillionaire, who drifts into the party, nobody knows just how.

Duley's desire to please Mr. Forbes does not turn out very successfully, especially when he finds Van Dyck and his wife spooning, and his daughter and Leach kissing each other in the garden.

When Angela and Leach decide to elope, with Duley's connivance, Bill offers to drive them to a minister. Forbes, discovering the elopement, is enraged and will not have any further dealings with Gordon, whose business seems to be on the rocks. The unwinding of these complications make up a screamingly funny picture.

One of the laugh-getters in "Not So Dumb" is the scene depicting a bridge game in which Miss Davies as hostess, plays everyone else's hand, and takes a brilliant game.

From all advance indications, "Not So Dumb" is ideal entertainment for those who enjoy an intelligent screen comedy. Talking comedy, "So This Is Marriage."

Reckless Driver Fined $50 Here

Justice of the Peace Arthur Alstrom yesterday fined Antonio Cambra of Pullman, $50 on a reckless driving charge. Traffic Officer Lester Eaton, who made the arrest, declared that Cambra drove over the curb onto the sidewalk and later forced two cars off the highway. Cambra contended his steering gear was out of order.

Ever in search of new novelties to please the eyes and ears of the screen fans, Fox Movietone has produced something new in the way of a musical extravaganza with its "Lets Go Places' which will make its bow before the local public at the Fox California theatre tomorrow only.

The story is light and rapid as most musical themes are, but it also gives rise to dozens of hilarious situations, which, with catchy melodies and glittering background of Hollywood at play, results in a thoroughly enjoyable piece of film entertainment. A young singer and his enthusiastic manager decide to try their luck in the talkies and go to the screen capital in hopes of getting a test. The singer's selection of a stage name involves him in a muddle of immensely amusing difficulties and his manager's efforts to smooth them out only makes matters worse.

The whirlwind finish provides both a climax of laughs and a satisfactory sotution of all their troubles that beset the various dance numbers and a gorgeous ballet or two gratify the audience's taste for the spectacular.

Joseph Wagstaff portrays the tuneful tenor and Lola Lane is cast as the film star with whom he has a rather bumpy love affair. Frank Richardson furnishes much of the comedy as the effervescent manager and Walter Catlett, Sharon Lynn, Dixie Lee, Charles Judels, Ilka Chase and Larry Steers all enact prominent roles. Frank Strayer directed the picture from the original story and dialogue by William K. Wells, and songs were written by four composing "teams" of Conrad, Mitchell, and Gottler, Hanley and Brockman, Little and Burke and McCarthy and Monaco. Mack Sennett comedy, 'Uppercut O'Brien.'

Singers Will Give Program

A program of spirituals, folk songs and recitations will be featured by the Cotton Blossom Singers of the Piney Woods school, of Mississippi, at the First Christian church tonight.

The program will start at 8 o'clock, and will be open to the public. A collection will be taken at the end of the program for the benefit of the school.

Dredger Moves To Waterfront

Preparatory to starting the widening of the inner harbor channel from the turn at Point Portrero to the present Ford channel, the dredger Seattle, of the Franks Contracting company of San Francisco, moved into the Richmond inner harbor yesterday. For a distance of 1756 feet, the channel will be widened 125 feet and dredged to a minimum depth of 27 feet.

The United States Engineering office at San Francisco announced that the Frank Company had been awarded the contract on a bid of 9.72 cents per cubic yard. The widened channel will be 475 feet wide and will provide ample clearance for ships entering the inner harboor.

Dumbartonshire Night Feted By Scotch Group

Dumbartonshire was the byword at the monthly social meeting of the St. Andrew's society of Richmond and vicinity held in the Richmoud clubhouse last night.

The entertainment and banquet which was served, was provided by those members of the organization who hail from Dumbartonshire in Scotland.

Peter MacCallum, president of the society, opened the meeting and introduced the chairman of the evening, Mrs. Jessie Small.

With the exception of Archie Glen, vice president of the Oakland society, Mrs. Small was the only member present who claimed Dumbartonshire as her native soil and her success with the program and banquet was highly lauded by the members.

The program was opened with a high'and fling and a buck and wing dance by Miss Gladys Blount, accompanied at the piano by Miss Emma Myers.

Mrs. Henrietta Sollers was next and sang several soprano solos, accompanied by Mrs. Alexander Dawson.

Archie Glen delivered the address of the evening, basing his talk on Dumbartonshire where he was born. He told many historic events that occured there, and eulogized the famous Loch Lomond and Ben Lomond, Scotland's gorgeous lake and mountain.

During the program, Laverne and Arthur Felciano played piano and violin duets in a finished manner.

Harold Felciano closed the program with several accordian solos.

After the refreshments had been served, the tables were cleared away and dancing was enjoyed to music played by Mac's orchestra.

The next social meeting will be held under the direction of the members who were born in Canada. Bill Brown is chairman of the committee, and is assisted by Hugh Smith, Robert Small and James Smith.

A tip . . . from

ANDREW CARNEGIE

ASKED to explain his phenomenal success, Andrew Carnegie blandly attributed it to his ability to get men to work for him who knew more than he did.

And that's a formula for success. Nobody who is really successful does all the work himself. He employs other people's minds and efforts.

Do you do the same in the intricate business of running your home and taking care of your family? You can, quite easily.

You can employ specialists in diet; you can serve the master dishes of famous chefs; you can have the advice of style authorities in selecting your clothes, of whole electrical laboratories in buying household appliances, by reading the advertisements.

All the newest knowledge—knowledge millions of dollars and years of effort have won—is contained in the advertisements.

If you will use the advertisements in this newspaper as Andrew Carnegie used men who knew more than he did, every dollar you spend will be spent wisely, economically, and will return full measure of satisfaction. That's the way to be a success in the greatest business in the world—making a home.

It pays to read the advertisements

NEW CANNING FIRM TO BE WELCOMED

The new canning firm of Filice and Perrelli, will be officially welcomed at a banquet on the evening of April 24.

This was decided yesterday by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, who will appoint committees to handle the details of the event.

The gathering will be under the direction of the chamber and will be held at the Hotel Carquinez, open to members of the chamber and the public, with the Filice and Perelli group as guests of honor.

G. A. Filice and John Perelli, the owners of the business, who have built up the largest independent canning institution in California, in the last ten years, will lead a delegation of their executives and assistants, numbering twenty or more.

Addresses will be made by Filice and Perelli, discussing the present progress on the constructon of the plant on the inner harbor and their future plans in Richmond.

The program of speeches by local men will be made up by a special committee to be named from among the other industries already established in the city.

Special music and entertainment will be provided by the committee.

The dinner is designed as the official welcome by the Chamber of Commerce to an industry which will employ approximately 70 persons for the greater part of each year. Their plant will be in operation within the next few weeks.

STEEL BATTLE DELAYED BY COURT

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, April 9. —(UP)—The fight of captains of the steel industry for control of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company was halted again today short of its climax.

Because of the difficulty of counting the hundreds of thousands of votes cast on the question of merger with the Bethlehem Steel company, it was necessary to postpone until 4 p. m. tomorrow the announcement of the ballot totals.

Then, at 11 p. m., Judge C S. Turnbaugh granted a temporary injunction against the voting of the proxy rights of approximately 125,000 shares of the stock which had changed hands since March 22, the deadline for granting of such rights.

It was the second dramatic move of the sort in 24 hours, and the second similar injunction Judge Turnbaugh has granted today. The first injunction was granted concerning 51,038 shares owned by Cleveland brokers who opposed the merger.

There seemed indications that if the injunctions should be made permanent at a hearing which probably will be held tomorrow morning, defeat for the merger plan might ensue.

NEW YORK, April 9.—UP—Formal announcement of the acquisition by Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., of the musical division of the Brunswick-Balke Collender Co was made here today.

SCHOOL EXPENDITURES FOR 1929 SHOW BIG INCREASE

of the county during the last ten years:

1929 Expenditures	$4,377,902
1919 Expenditures	1,730,360
Increase 1919-29.....	$2,647,542

During this same ten year period expenditures for elementary and high schools have shown an increase of $1,363,117 in the annual amount, increasing from $772,401 in 1919 to $2,182,252 in 1929. This increase accounts for slightly more than half of the county total increase.

Attendance Increase

The increase of $1,363,117.45 in annual school expenditures (which does not include bond money expenditures) represents an increase of 187.4 percent over 1919. This should be contrasted with an increase in the average daily attendance, as follows:

1919; 8,562; 1929, 13,665; — increase 59.6 percent.

With an increase in ten years of 59.6 percent in average daily attendance and of 187.4 percent in expenditures, it may be said that expenditures have increased more than three times as fast as attendance.

As a matter of fact, the figures above do not really measure the total increase in school expenditures because there is not included therein the bond money expenditures "Interest and bond redemption" for school bonds have increased from $61,613 in 1919 to $306,106 in 1929. If this increase of $244,492 be considered, the total increase in annual expenditures for the benefit of schools has been $1,607,610 or 203.7 percent.

Increase In Taxes

The direct burden on county taxpayers has been ascertained by deducting from the total expenditures for all school purposes the amounts granted by the state. Thus computed, the amount to be raised by county taxation is found to have increased from $633,171 in 1919 to $1,978,707 in 1929, an increase of $1,344,536 or 212 percent increase.

Increases Compared

The attention of taxpayers is directed to the following three increases in the last ten years:

Increase in tax burden for schools 212.0 precent.

Increase in assessed values 48.9 percent.

Increase in population 23.5 percent.

Taxes for the benefit of schools have increased more than four times as fast as property values and more than nine times as fast as population.

Economy Necessary

"With the approach of the budget period," declared F. W. Vieth, chairman of the budget committee of the county tax association today, "the figures issued by the county auditor are a timely reminder that, for the benefit of the taxpayer, proposals to increase expenditures should be scrutinized carefully. economies should be made effective and that every dollar should be spent in such way as to secure the greatest possible return."

AIR "BATTLES" WATCHED BY THRONGS

SACRAMENTO, Calif., April 9. —(UP)—Army aviators obligingly went through their war tricks above Mather field today in view of a large crowd of spectators gathered for the army air corps field exercises.

It was the first day since the eventstarted that the planes had displayed their war game at a central point where all could watch

Squadrons of bombers droned above the field at an elevation of 1000 feet, dropping theoretical bombs. Suddenly attack planes would dash in from the skies and dive at them in simulated destruction.

Pursuit planes, flying high above bombardment, would roar down onthe attacking group to protect thebombers, which, it was assumed, were part of their forces.

Umpires on the field, judging from the suddenness of the pursuit planes' descent and skill in defending "from the sun" of how complete was their victory over the attack planes.

Saturday an army photographer will fly to Palo Alto and take pictures of President Hoover's home from the air, it was announced by headquarters today.

The pictures will be sent to Washington and presented to the president with the compliments of the air corps.

Tomorrow, squadrons of bombardment, pursuit and attack planes will give another exhibition over Mather field. Other groups will visit the Concord, Stockton, Woodland and Marysville regions of central California hypothetical enemies.

Valentino Estate Set At $800,000

LOS ANGELES, April 9.—(UP) —At the time of his death, the estate of Rudolph Valentino, famous movie star, was valued at approximately $800,000, according to a preliminary accounting filed in probate court today.

The report was made by George S. Ullman, the star's manager and executive. It showed that Ullman had advanced $21,616 to Maria S. Guglielmi and $38,849 to Albert Gugliemli, the actors's sister and brother.

Ullman stated that he had received a salary of $750 a week as manager for Valentino, and expressed a belief that the estate owed him a similar sum for work since Valentino'st death in 1926. Under such an arrangement, he said, he would have $70,000 coming, but asked for a lump sum of $50,000, in addition to a $15,000 fee for W. I.Gilbert, attorney.

DISTRICT MEET OF PYTHIANS DELAYED

At a business meeting of the Knights of Pythias in the Brotherhood hall last night, it was announced that the district convention scheduled for April 18 had been postponed until April 30.

Postponement was made due to the inability of H. W. Falk of Eureka, grand vice chancellor, to be present on the original date.

The convention will be held at the Pinole opera house as it is believed the Knights of Pythias hall in Pinole will be too small to cope with the crowd that is expected.

The convention will start with a dinner at 6:30 to which members of the Pythian lodge, the Pythian Sisters and their friends are invited.

Following the dinner, entertainment will be provided and speeches made. Falk will be the principal speaker of the evening.

Very little business in America is transacted on a cash basis. Manufacturers, wholesale houses, professional men and women, merchants, receive credit from their bank and extend credit to their customers and clients.

Individuals engaged in private business such as building homes, improving property and the like always use bank credit for their obligations

Repeatedly individuals have made money beyond which they can rise in the form of cash. At such times the Mechanics Bank proves to be a welcome financial friend. Loans can be established on the basis of character, stock exchange collateral, unencumbered real estate or a financial statement.

HIGH TRACKMEN IN A. C. A. L. MEET TODAY

The varsity tracksters of the Richmond union high school will end their session today when they compete with six other schools on the University of California oval in the only Alameda County Athletic league meet of the season.

The other teams participating in today's meet are Berkeley, Emeryville, Hayward, Centerville, Alameda and San Leandro.

The Richmond boys will have to meet stronger competition today than in any other track meet this season. The Berkeleyans are probably their most dangerous opponents, as they have already asserted their superiority over many eastbay teams in meets held earlier in the season.

Yet the Richmond athletes believe that they will be able to close competition and maybe come out in the one-two-three class.

If the local weight throwers and distance runners are at their best form today, Richmond may have a fair chance. The Richmond sprinters and hurdlers have not been up to par this season, but since their last track tourney, they have been continually striving in practice to cut down their times.

A large number of local track enthusiasts are expected to make the trip to Berkeley to see the Richmond track aggregation in action. Tickets for the event may be obtained from either Ivan Hill or Phil Hempler, high school coaches, or from Ed Owens, high school athletic manager.

YACHT SEASON WILL OPEN APRIL 27

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—Formal opening of the 1930 yachting season Sunday, April 27, will be marked by an all-day series of spectacular yacht, motorboat and other aquatic events, to be held off the Marina, it was announced yesterday by officials of the Associated Boat Industries of California, who are arranging the marine pageant.

The day of aquatic sports will be one of the highlights of the second annual Pacific Coast Boat Show, to be held at the exposition auditorium April 23 to 30, inclusive.

Participants will include the combined fleets of the San Francisco bay yacht and power boat clubs and local yachtsmen are cooperating to make it the biggest event of its character ever staged on the Pacific coast.

Featured during the day will be the annual yacht parade, in which the yachts of all the clubs about the bay and its tributaries will take part, a yacht regatta, with races and trophies for every class of sailing craft, swimming and rowing events, outboard motor races and larger power boat races.

At noon the long distance power cruiser race from Long Beach to San Francisco, with approximately 30 speedy craft participating, will finish off the eastern end of the Marina.

Other races to finish at the same point during the day will include the outboard runabout and outboard speedster marathon from Stockton, the former the longest race of its kind on American waters during the 1930 season.

New Teams Join Junior American Legion League

The membership of the Junior American Legion baseball league increased to 28 teams yesterday with the entrance into the league of four more squads. The new teams are the Blue Jays, O'Malley's, First Baggers, and Mission Babes.

The league play will start Monday afternoon and close Memorial day. The final game will be played as the first annual "Doc" Seawright concert in memory of W. L. Seawright, Richmond recreational director who lost his life recently in an automobile accident.

George Miner is director of the league. Yesterday was the last day for entrance into the league.

The teams that entered yesterday are:

ANGELS TAKE LEAD IN LEAGUE

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—(UP)—The Los Angeles Angels went into first place of the Pacific coast league today, solving the curves of three pitchers to defeat Portland 9 to 2.

Six other teams of the circuit had divided the first two games of the season, the San Francisco Seals, Oakland and San Francisco Missions enjoying their first victories today.

The Angels took the lead in the first inning and easily kept it safe because their hurler, Baecht, permitted only seven scattered hits.

The most thrilling game was at Oakland when Hollywood's Shieks tied the score with three runs in the first of the ninth. The Oaks fought back, however and put across a run in the last half to win 8 to 7. A homer by Vergez scored four runs for Oakland in the first.

Although outhit, the Missions triumphed over Sacramento 4 to 2. The San Francisco team wasted one hit and took advantage of an error to win.

Jimmy Zinn, of the Seals, held Seattle to four hits and the local squad won, 10 to 2.

Local Athletes Win Letters

Two moret Richmond boys have attained fame in college sports. This time it is Charles Baldwin and Charles Malianni, who have recently been awarded "letters" for their service on the Marin Junior college varsity basketbal team.

Baldwin was also awarded a place on the all-conference team.

Both local boys saw action on the Richmond union high school varsity age teams. Baldwin also starred in football and track, and Malianni was a member of the B football squad and varsity track team.

New High School Diamond To Be Dedicated Friday

The new Richmond union high school baseball diamond will witness its first big ball game tomorrow afternoon, when the Richmond union high school varsity nine crosses bats with the Emeryville high school squad. No more high school contests will be played on the First street diamond as a result of the completion of the high school field. The Richmond athletes have had a rather hectic season in the Alameda County Athletic league. They are among the "also-rans" yet they have succeeded in defeating the two league leading teams, Alameda and Berkeley high schools. In their more recent contests, the local boys have shown a superior batting standard than that shown earlier in the season.

Lemon is scheduled to do the chucking for Richmond in Friday's game, and either Rosano or Ball will receive for the local squad.

Odd Fellow 9 To Meet Corey Squad Sunday

The Odd Fellow of Richmond will clash with the Corey Garage nine Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on the El Cerrito diamond.

Orr will take the mound for the lodgemen, while Brendel is expected to twirl for the Coreys.

The Odd Fellow lineup will include: Matteri, 3b; Gordon, ss; Moltoza, 1b; Gualdoni, c; Kamb cf; J. Pinto, lf; C. Pinto 2b; Orr, p; Brown rf; and Gray utility.

Sunday's game will be the first contest in which the Odd Fellows will see action this year. In past seasons, they have been recognized as dangerous foes, and it is expected that their skill on the diamond will not be decreased when they start this season's competition. They will participate in this year's city twilight baseball league.

The Coreys have been playing fast ball since the beginning of the present season, and they may be reckoned upon to present strong opposition to the Odd Fellows uSnday on the El Cerrito diamond.

2 Net Teams Will Enter County Games

Two junior single tennis teams will be entered in the Contra Costa county closed tournament by the Richmond Tennis club according to a decision reached at a meeting of the club in the city hall last night. The teams will be composed of two boys and two girls.

The tournament will be held in Crockett in May, according to the announcement made at the meeting.

The boys who will represent Richmond are Jim Hurley, and Phil Carlin, and the two girls will be chosen from Sylvia Seawright, Helen Dunning, Theresa Bernardi and Jennie Stark.

Following the meeting last night a social evening of card games was held and refreshments were served. About 25 members were present at the meeting.

GRANT NINE BEATS WILSON

The Grant school baseball teams yesterday defeated the Woodrow Wilson boys' and girls' teams at the Grant school diamond.

The boys won their game by a score of 3 to 1. Henshey pitched for the Grant team. Pontiac, Sotano, and Koish were the batteries for the Wilson school.

The Grant girls won their game by a score of 30 to 0. The Grant school battery was Shubat and Lorenizo; Woodrow Wilson, Armstrong and Krumdick.

Coaches Praise Rivals In U. C., Husky Boat Race

SEATTLE, April 9.—UP— By way of removing any overconfidence, coaches of the University of California and the University of Washington crews told their men today how good their opponents would be in the regatta on Lake Washington Friday afternoon.

Al Ulbrickson obviously was pleased with his varsity eight yet reminded them that the Golden Bears had shown impressively in trial workouts and would be extremely dangerous over the four-mile course. Ky Ebright, California mentor, praised the Huskies to new heights in hopes his oarsmen would outdo themselves.

Freshman, junior varsity and varsity races will be held at hour intervals, starting at three p. m. Friday, providing Lake Washington remains calm. Should a storm swing in from the sea, the races will be postponed until Saturday morning.

STATE BOXERS WIN A. A. U. TITLES

BOSTON, April 9—(UP)—George Ostrow, tiny little Rivere, Mass., battler, was the first champion crowned in the national A. A. U. boxing tournament tonight. He was awarded the title when his opponent, A. Fantrell, of New Orleans, was unable to respond to the bell for the second round.

The 118-pound title went to Abie Miller, Los Angeles, in a nip and tuck bout with Frankie Wallace, of Cleveland. The Los Angeles boy upset a heavy favorite for the medal.

Ray Meyer of New York dropped Don Astro of Pennsylvania for the 126-pound crown.

Alex Santora of New York was given a questionable decision over George Parker of Buffalo in the 135-pound finals.

The heavyweight final was short lived, Jack Pallag of Cleveland, knocking out Sylvan Taylor, New York negro in the first round.

Charley Kelley, of, Newton, Mass., was given an unpopular verdict over Joe Bernal in the 147-pound final.

The best bout of the evening found Ring Larsen of Quincy, Mass., outpointing Al Becker of Pittsburg for three rounds, in the 160-pound class.

Frank Tucker, San Francisco, 175-pounder carried too many guns for Frank Mills, of Worcester, and won the title when the referee stopped the bout in the second inning to save Mills unnecessary punishment.

Poet Netmen Beat Teddies

The tennis team of Longfellow Junior high school gained its second win over the Roosevelt Junior high school squad yesterday by winnign three out of four matches. The first tourney of the two game set was won by Longfellow also by a score of three matches to one.

In the singles yesterday, Garibotti of Longfellow defeated Robinson of the Teddies 4-6, 6-3 and 6-4, while Smith of Longfellow defeated Faust 6-2, 8-6.

In the double matches, Pickering and Anderson of Roosevelt lost to Stark and Melin of Longfellow 7-5, 6-0. Grignashi and Garoutte of Longfellow conquered Pratt and Wakefield of Roosevelt 6-0, 6-3.

The Longfellow Junior high school tennis athletes will journey to Berkeley tomorrow to tangle with the Garfield squad on the Berkeley Tennis club courts. A return tournament will be played on the local city hall courts April 25.

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."
Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

SYNOPSIS

David Wade, robbed while drunk by O'Shane, is cared for by Stella Blackney, secretly the wife of O'Shane, whom she loathes. She appeals to Wade to save her from O'Shane, who, by their bargain, is to claim her upon her ailing mother's death. Wade pities her when he learns her story and they flee to the South Sea island of Motogaru, intending to trade with the natives. But Stella has come to love Wade, whom she can't marry, and is afraid Moira, a half-caste girl, will win him away. She refuses to remain on Motogaru and quarrels with Wade.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

Stella started and sat up. Fight her trouble! Break the chain! It flashed upon her like a great white brilliant light. From this mission-taught half-savage she had learned a lesson of great import. She would fight the half-caste for David! She loved him! It was a tremendous fact, that love. She couldn't gainsay it, nor did she want to gainsay it.

Instead of trying to escape the chain, she would strive to break it, destroy its power to encompass her again!

She ran up on deck to find David. At the sound of her step he turned and came to her, apologetically, sheepishly almost, his old, good-humored self in his arms she whispered abandoment of her objections to Motogaru.

"What is she like?" "I'll leave you to find that out."

CHAPTER VII

They went ashore then, squeezed together in the stern of the small-boat. David the while betraying by his manner his relief that their difference had ended so happily, but carefully refraining from commenting on it—from which circumstance Stella guessed that he feared the result of comment or question would be the reopening of the whole discussion with maybe the victory against him.

He need not have feared, however. Stella had no intention of going back on her determination. She was finding the prospect of a struggle far more satisfactory than the prospect of fight.

"Comfortable?" Dav'd queried as they slipped across the water; and from his tone she knew he referred to her emotional comfort rather than to any physical discomfort caused by the narrowness of the boat.

"Quite," she answered; and she told herself she was almost glad they had quarreled, for the "making-up" had brought David closer in understanding and sympathy. Wholeheartedly, she privately renounced the many bitter things she had thought of him, and said, in the heat of anger.

The village was a single line of thatched houses, a hundred or more, built on high piles, facing the lagoon, and each had a veranda of sorts—to which a crazy ladder gave access from the ground—and but one door, and that only a door of sorts, and of windows none at all.

The chief seemed proud of the place. He had the air of a provincial mayor exhibiting to distinguished visitors the sights of the town. He showed them the Sacred House, and the place where the skulls of dead enemies were kept, which was a place separate from where the skulls of dead friends were kept.

And so, for an hour or more, they wandered about, making their acquaintance with the island's predominant features and aspects, accompanied all the time by seemingly the whole of the villagers, who took every opportunity of expressing their pleasure at the prospect of a trader coming to live among them, the while the chief besprinkled his voluble explanations of the things he showed hem with declarations of the success which would attend a trader here.

"They are thinking of the goods we will supply them," said David once. "The tobacco, cloth, hand-mirrors, and other trade-things They reckon they're in for a good time if we stay. Nevertheless, it is pleasant to get such a welcome. It makes one feel so very much at home."

"Yes," said Stella vaguely. She hadn't paid much attention to the natives, and the chief's informative speeches had interested her but mildly. Her mind was on the task that lay before her. She was waiting to meet the half-caste Moira. She had thought to come across her before this. The meeting of the half-caste and David would mark the beginning of her fight. It would be a definite starting point.

"I wonder if Captain Melrose would give me a cup of tea if we went off to his boat," she said. "After all this walking around I feel I need nothing so much as a cup of tea."

"We will go at once," David replied. "Melrose is anxious to meet you. He will be glad to hear you have already met his daughter.

"By the way," he went on, "now I think of it, you haven't told me anything about her. I hope she is the kind of girl you will get on with all right. What is she like?"

Stella set her lips, but answered casually enough:

"I leave you to find that out for yourself."

With the natives crowding behind them they went across the island to the opposite beach.

A canoe lay in against the sand, and, with Manua and another to paddle it, they stepped on board, seating themselves on a bamboo platform which spanned the outrigger. As the craft moved out, the chief called a farewell.

Like a thing that moved of its own volition, so quietly did the paddlers dip their blades, the canoe crept alongside the schooner and to the foot of a ladder with sides of rope and steps of wood. At the top of it the head of a grey-haired white man appeared, peering down over the rail. Stella went carefully up, and, tender-handed as a woman, the man helped her on board.

"Mrs. Wade, I suppose?" His face was rugged yet, paradoxically, finely cut, and his eyes had the blue of the sea in them.

"My daughter told me about you," he said. "Come aft here and make yourself comfortable." He guided her to a deck-chair beneath the awning. On the top of the cabin house was the gramophone.

"You would like some tea, Mrs. Wade," Melrose said as David came up.

"I would indeed," said Stella. "We have been examining our new home-to-be, and it is somewhat exhausting."

Melrose called a cook-boy—a youth with exceedingly close-cropped hair and a skin of remarkable blackness—and gave him an order in his own tongue.

"Then you have decided to settle here?" said Melrose! and there was pleasure in his eyes. "I was afraid you were not going to. My daughter said you thought you might go elsewhere——"

"It was a case of making sure that this place was satisfactory," David put in quickly, glancing at Stella. "My wife doesn't believe in rushing things, you know. She was waiting to know what I thought of the island before committing herself."

"You are a wise young lady, I see," commented Melrose, and produced some cigarettes and passed them around. Stella took one and David lit it for her.

"Moira has gone off again in a canoe—fishing with the natives," said Melrose. "She should be back soon."

"She seems fond of that kind of thing," said Stella.

Melrose sighed. "She is rather. And I don't like it——"

He stopped and changed the subject; and until the remarkably black cook-boy arrived with the tea—and also some fresh scones he had baked with incredible quickness—they talked of the things of the outer world.

Then, the tea over, David went for'rd to watch the crew boys working at the pearl-shell, he being attracted to the business of pearling as a matter of general interest, though he had had no experience of it.

For a time neither Melrose nor Stella spoke. The man was regarding the girl intently, as though appraising her. Stella took another of his cigarettes. She was feeling more than a little nervous. She wished he wouldn't look at her like that.

"I'm worried about her," said Melrose presently. "I wish she wouldn't do it."

"Who?" asked Stella, though she knew to whom he referred.

"Moira. She is too fond of running about in canoes, and all that." He moved uneasily in his seat. "I do my best to prevent her. I've tried to bring her up right. I sent her to school and wouldn't have had her back here at all, only—only, well, I'm getting old, and I needed her. She's all I've got, you know."

ROLPH ENTERS RACE FOR GOVERNOR

candidate for the Republican nomination for the office of governo- of California. Encouragement from citizens of every county in the state justifies this decision and is an expression of confidence which gives me substantial hope of success.

"This is my native state. To be its governor is the proper aspiration of any man who has had public experience like mine

Mayor Twenty Years

"Almost 20 years ago I was urged to yield my private interests and become Mayor of San Francisco. Since then I have been steadily honored with the trust of the public interests of that city.

"I can bring to the problems of this state a long experience and an open public record of faithful and efficient service.

"If elected I will be governor of all the people of California. There are no territorial boundaries within the state. I will practice sound economic and business principles. I will urge an equitable tax plan — a humane soluton of our crime problems and a permanent program for conserving our natural resources, especially water.

No Promises.

"In entering into this campaign I am beholden to no man or any clique; free from pre-election promises; free from political bossism; and if elected I will serve the length and breadth of my native state, and to that service I will dedicate myself.

"I appeal to the voluntary activity of my friends in all counties of the state to help me in my candidacy. Because of the far reaching demands of the primary law, I intend to pay a visit to the people of every county seat of every county of the state during my campaign, and as many cities, towns and hamlets as I can reach.

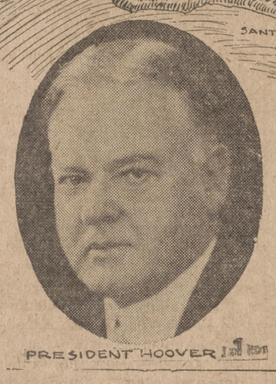
"In this campaign I promise to go directly to you, the people of the State of California, confident of your good will and support.

"Respectfully,

(Signed) "James Rolph, Jr."

Hello, South America

PRESIDENT HOOVER recently talked with South America via the long distance telephone. Photo shows huge switchboard where the president's call was plugged in.



PRESIDENT HOOVER

Span Engineer At Kiwanis Club

H. I. Benjamin, bridge engineer for the Southern Pacific company, was the speaker at the day at the meeting of the Richmond Kiwanis club in the Hotel Carquinez yesterday noon. Benjamin told of the methods of constructing the bridge across the Carquinez Straits, and stated that the estimated cost would be $12,000,000. The bridge is expected to be completed by December, Benjamin said.

J. J. Barry was chairman of the day, George Milner won the attendance prize and Lee Wharton presided over the meeting. Major Kranz of the Salvation Army made a short talk at the meeting.

Arthur Squier, local newspaper man, was accepted as a new member by the club.

At a meeting of the board of directors, Ted Madson was elected delegate to the convention to be held in Atlantic City this fall.

THREE POWER PACT NEAR AT MEET

LONDON, April 9. —UP — A three power naval agreement moved a step closer to fruition today while a five-power treaty seemed less possible of attainment. Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson announced that the American, British and Japanese delegations had reached complete agreement on the Japanese reservations to a three-power pact.

Japan, he said, had withdrawn its request for permission to transfer some of its alloted destroyer tonnage to the submarine division. She will be permitted, however, to accelerate replacement of submarines, destroyers and light cruisers so as to keep her shipyards employed.

The three delegatio n heads will meet again tomorrow to consider problems concerning ships to be retained for training purposes, Stimson added.

Quarrel Settled

The American's announcement meant that Japan, the United States and Great Britain have settled all vital differences among themselves and now are ready to incorporate their settlement into a three power treaty, if one is reached. If there can be no five power treaty, further negotiation will be necessary in drawing up a "safeguarding" clause for a three-power pact.

This clause is believed likely to specify that Britain may exceed the tonnage figures alloted her in the three-power treaty, provided the combined French and Italian fleets at any time exceed hers. The clause would permit the United States to build equally and Japan to build in proportion.

Second development of special interest to the United States was a decision by a subcommittee dealing with aircraft carriers. Under the Washington treaty, an aircraft carrier is a vessel of more than 10,000 tons, bearing a limited number of 6 and 8 inch guns and designed for the exclusive purpose of carrying aircraft.

The committee decided to apply the same definition to aircraft carriers below 10,000 tons except that such smaller craft may carry only 6 inch guns.

Adjournment Soon

The United States now has only three aircraft carriers. The subcommittee's decision, if adopted by the conference would permit America to build a fair number of small carriers without exceeding its quota.

Secretary Stimson began discharge of his final social obligations today, including a dinner to Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald at Stanmore tonight, apparently in preparation for an early sailing.

Men's Church Clubs Will Meet Tonight

Organization of the Men's Brotherhood Federation will be discussed at a dinner meeting of the various men's church clubs tonight at 6:30, in the Frst Baptst church.

Delegates from all clubs in the county will be present to discuss the move.

PITTSBURG FISH CANNERY BURNS

PITTSBURG, April 9.—Fed by heavy fish oil, fire early this morning destroyed the Cumberland street cannery and wharf of the Western California Fish Cannery, causing damage estimated at $100,000.

The F. E. Booth cannery, adjoining the fish corporation was also threatened for a time by fire which is believed to have started by spontaneous combuston.

The fire was discovered about 1:30 a. m., and immediately a barge loaded with fish was dragged from the pier and saved. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

The company's safe, which toppled into the river with the debris, was recovered this morning with the aid of a dredger.

Of the loss, $75,000 was represented in the structure, and $25,000 in fish stored in the building by the Booth cannery.

Better Home Plans To Be Made Today

Mrs. C. F. De Shields recently appointed chairman of Better Homes Week observance in Richmond, April 27 to May 3, has called a meeting of representatives from men's and women's clubs, service organizations and other civic bodies for this afternoon to plan a suitable observation of Better Homes Week here. The meeting will be held in the Richmond clubhouse.

C. C. Committee To Attend Sewer Meeting Tonight

The mass meeting at the city hall tonight will be attended by a committee from the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, which will make recomendation as to how large a sewer program they think should be carried out.

P. M. Sanford, president of the chamber, was authorized at yesterday's meeting of the directors to name such a committee. The members will hold a meeting in conjunction with E. A. Hoffman, city engineer and Jame McVittee, city manager, to discuss all phases of the problem and arrive at a conclusion.

Hoffman described the general plan before the directors yesterday and there was uncertainty as to whether the major plan should be carried out or some smaller alternative program of construction placed under way to care for the industrial area and other sections which are most seriously in need of relief.

First Aid Course To Be Given Here

Richmond police officers and Boy Scouts will attend a first aid course which will be opened here in May it was announced yesterday. The classes will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30, at Abbott Emergency hospital, under the direction of Dr. L. St. John Hely.

The lessons are sponsored by the Red Cross. Twelve lessons will be given.

Patent Suit Victory Won By Magnavox

SAN FRANCISCO, April 9.—(UP)—Radio patents secured by the Magnaxov company have been infringed upon by Frederick H. Thompson company, local distributors for Majectic radios and the Grigsby-Grunow company, Federal Judge A. F St. Sure ruled here late today.

Assets and rights valued at millions of dollars were involved in the suit, which was filed more than a year ago.

Judge St. Sure ordered payment of all relief asked for in the complaint, including an accounting and demanded cessation of infringements on patents for dynamic loud speakers.

Some time will probably be needed to check up on the amount of equipment containing the loud speakers that has been sold by Frederick H. Thompson company.

The decision is expected to have a reaction on stock exchanges.

Judge St. Sure said:

"I find as follows:

"That each claim of letter patten 1,266,988 and 1,448,279 and 1,579,392 are valid.

"That defendant has infringed upon said letters patent and each of them, as alleged in plaintiff's bill of complaint.

"That plaintiff have a decree sustaining the validity of letters patent, and also in accordance with the prayer of its bill of complaint."

Simultaneously the untouchables tried to enter the Kalarm temple, where they had tried unsuccessfully to worship at various times during the last two months. Hindus met them at the gates, threw stones at them and injured their leaders. They also burned the untouchables camp.

Ghandi On Tour

Nasik is 100 miles northeast of Bombay, and somewhat to the south of the scene of Ghandi's activities.

No matter how seriously Ghandi preached the breaking of the British salt law, no hand was laid on him today, though police were active in eachplace before he arrived and equally busy when he departed. It was clear the British hesitated to arrest him through fear of giving him the guise of martyrdom and thus arouse his followers.

Ghandi traveled about the countryside in an automobile. When a tire was punctured he hired another car. He visited a number of villages where the Setyagraph (passive resistance) movement was strong, and planned to concentrate for the remainder of the week around Surat, where his son, Ram Das, was under sentence for violating the salt laws.
